Click on the settings icon on the top right. Navigate into 'More' settings at the bottom of the view. Now, you should be able to tab the 'Delete Account' button. Can you find out who sent a Tellonym? Here's some things you should know before getting tellonym: 1. You can't find out who's sending you tells unless the user who's sending you tells decides to remove their anonymous status by clicking on the tell they sent you and liking the post that reveals their user. Is Tellonym safe? No violence in the app itself, but violent content and threats could be sent anonymously. Users report being told to kill themselves. No sexual content in the app itself, but links to Snapchat and Instagram mean suggestive photos could be shared and sexual content sent anonymously. What is the point of Tellonym? Created in 2016, by three students, Tellonym is an anonymous messaging app that lets you ask and answer questions about each other anonymously and non-anonymously, it's popular among teens. What does Tellonym stand for? Tellonym is a messaging network that is accessible on the Web and through the Android and iOS application. The name is derived from Tell and "Anonym" (the German word for anonymously). Tellonym allows users to send messages through the platform, both anonymous and non-anonymous. What happens when you block someone on Tellonym? Blocking senders works for non-registered users as well as for registered ones. It removes the senders ability to write you additional Tells. If you block the anonymous sender of a Tell, the sender won't get informed. Can Tellonym be traced? You don't have to fear that you are going to be revealed unless you commit a crime on Tellonym (bullying is a crime). Only law enforcement agencies are able to track down a person that sent a Tell and only do so if somebody filed a police report or started a lawsuit. Can you block someone on Tellonym? Tellonym has blocking mechanisms to exclude people you don't want your teen to interact with. On every profile, you have the option to block that person, by pressing on the three dots, which removes their ability to see your teen's posts, to send you messages and to interact with your teen otherwise. How do I find out who sent me an anonymous message on Kubool? There's no way to find out who has sent you the message on Kubool. This app is an anonymous app, meaning that you will not get to know who is sending you messages. How can you tell where someone is texting from? XNSPY is a popular message tracking app to see who someone is texting. It has a pretty user-friendly interface and is equipped with advanced tracking and monitoring features. Remote tracking is available for both Android and iOS device. You can even view the conversations deleted by the users. How can I track an anonymous text message?
